slow FIXES

I admit it: As much as I love my home, sometimes I want to throw everything out and start over. It's not that I don't adore all my possessions (believe me, I do!), it's that my house – with its riding equipment, hockey gear, fabric swatches, teenaged-daughter trail of clothing and shoes, cast-off furniture, pet stuff, work papers and other random bits and bobs of a busy life – is not organized. In other words, it's pretty much the same as everyone else's home.

Here's another admission: Like most people, I'm a sucker for magazine headlines that promise better organization. Cut the Clutter! Storage Solutions! Smart Strategies for Every Room! They're all guaranteed to make me plunk down my cash, positive that this time I've found the magic formula for making my home orderly and serene, a minimalist's dream, with everything in its designated space.

The reality is that I will never have a construction bin in my driveway ready to receive everything I own. And there is no magic formula for living clutter-free, other than owning next to nothing. Not my style at all! So should I give up my dream of an organized home? Absolutely not. I just have to be practical and start small. Instead of throwing the baby out with the bathwater, I need to make tiny changes that, over time, will make a big difference.

That's the message this issue. Handy helpers for streamlining your kitchen abound in our Style News section, while our home office stories showcase genius ways to get both form and function from your workspace. Plus, we've pulled out clever ideas in each of our interiors that help the owners stay organized. Whether it's a towel rack or a monochromatic palette, you'll find a great place to start.

COTTAGE COMFORT

I received the July 2015 issue in the mail today and read it cover to cover. I love all the homes featured, but my absolute favourite is the cottage that editor-in-chief Erin McLaughlin's family updated ("The Family Stone," page 100). It looks so comfortable, which is my idea of the perfect family getaway. I also love how they honoured their grandfather's memory by retaining some of his workmanship. Thank you so much for keeping a summer retreat "real."

SHERRY SPENCER, VIA EMAIL

DETAILED DISCOVERIES

One of my family's favourite columns in Style at Home is High or Low. My two kids (ages eight and six) can't wait to tear into each new issue as soon as it arrives to try to distinguish between the high and the low rooms. I have to say, I'm pretty proud of my junior designers, as they have become very skilled at picking out the key details that differentiate the price points. We hope to continue seeing this column for years to come.

JULIE TOMPA, HALIFAX

CREATIVE OUTLET

Consistently stellar, Style at Home has been my source of inspiration since I was 13 years old. The awesome photography, decorating tips and recipes have all helped develop my creativity and eye for detail. The magazine has recently motivated me to sell much of my old furniture to create a brand new look for my home. Thanks for the great issues!

SARAH GREY, VIA EMAIL

HOT AND COLD

With the recent heat wave in Vancouver, I was very appreciative of the Malted Nectarine Yogurt Pops featured in the July 2015 Desert of the Month column (page 40). I decided to serve them at a dinner party, and my guests were amazed that I had managed to whip up the dessert from scratch. It's great to have access to original recipes like this. I look forward to more delicious ideas!

burn notice

SIZE MATTERS

Candles come in all shapes and sizes. Though choosing one is mostly based on aesthetics, bear in mind that larger, wider options have significantly longer burn times. For instance, a pillar is a great low-maintenance choice for outdoors – place it in a glass hurricane to protect it from the wind, and it can go for hours.

WICK(ED)

Typically made of cotton, wicks absorb the warmed wax and pull it upward for the flame to burn. Look for intricately braided or knitted constructions, which burn slower and keep the flame going longer.

WAXING PROTECTIVE

When not in use, candles should be wrapped in tissue paper and stored in a dark, cool spot (for extra protection, place tapers in paper towel rolls). To revive dusty or nicked candles, don old pantyhose like a glove and buff the surface.

HOW TO

select and use outdoor candles

Everything you need to know about candles so you can lend your patio party that perfect glow (without the waxy mess). PRODUCER MARY LEVITSKI

Candlelight is the ideal complement to a relaxing night outside – until you have a wax spill, that is.

The good news is there's no reason to rush to clean it; wiping wet wax will only make it spread. Wait for it to fully dry (or speed up the process by holding a bagged ice cube against it). If the spilled-on surface is hard, such as metal or glass, scrape off the wax using the edge of a credit card. If it's fabric, isolate it from the insert or any stuffing and use a dull butter knife to remove the wax. If any residue remains, place a few sheets of paper towel over it and heat with an iron set to low (the warmed wax will transfer onto the paper). Repeat, swapping in fresh paper towels as needed.

wax on, wax off

THE LOWDOWN ON THE THREE MOST POPULAR KINDS OF CANDLE WAX.

Paraffin: Most common and inexpensive; a by-product of crude oil, so it's non-renewable and may release toxins as it burns.

Soy: Natural and long-burning; typically less fragrant than alternatives.

Beeswax: The original candle wax, it's all-natural and has a pleasing honey scent; pricey.

TEST THE WATER

Contain drips by using a tray or candle holder. To keep the holder clean, pour a little water in before inserting the candle; dripped wax will sit and harden on the water's surface.

EDITOR'S ITINERARY: Las Vegas

NEVADA

Think Sin City is all partying, gambling and dancing? Think again. With trendy restaurants, chic shops and designer hotels, Vegas is also a decor lover's dream that's well worth the splurge.

Day 1

Check into SLS Las Vegas, the stylish yet playfully luxurious new hotel designed by the inimitable Philippe Starck, boasting quirky decorative winks like mirrors on the ceiling and monkey-adorned stained glass windows. Grab a latte at The Perq coffee shop and decompress at Fox-tail Pool (4), which, true to Starck style, features a giant rubber ducky sculpture and colourful circus-tent-striped cabanas. Get gussied up for a night out and start with cocktail hour at The Chandelier (a tri-level bar adorned with two million beaded crystals) at The Cosmopolitan of Las Vegas. Order a Verbena, which comes topped with a "Szechuan button" that will take your taste buds on a titillating ride. Then splurge on dinner at the Michelin-starred Picasso at the Bellagio, where you'll dine among original artwork by the cubist painter. Request a table by the window to enjoy the famous Fountains of Bellagio, too. And what's a trip to Vegas without a show? Cirque du Soleil's O features daring aquatic acrobatics that will blow you out of the water and whisk you into a surrealist's fantasy world.

Day 2

Have an early brekkie at Della's Kitchen at the chic new Delano Las Vegas, which serves up fresh locally sourced fare – the Mojave Sunrise hand-pressed juice is just divine. Then, stray from the strip and head to downtown Vegas. Get dazzled at The Neon Museum (3), where old casino signs are laid to rest; strolling the two-acre wonderland of towering vintage neon is a jaw-dropping experience. Spend the afternoon shopping and gallery hopping in 18b, the Las Vegas Arts District. Feeling hungry? Make Bar/Bistro in The Arts Factory Las Vegas your first stop, after which you can explore the converted warehouse it's located in and the many studios and galleries there. Next, go treasure hunting in Antique Alley Las Vegas, making sure to stop in at Patina (1) and The Funk House. Head back to the hotel for a decadent dinner at Bazaar Meat by José Andrés and treat yourself to some Cotton Candy Foie Gras to satisfy the kid and the adult in you. Enjoy a nightcap at The Sayers Club for live music and artisanal drinks.

Day 3

Recharge by sleeping in or hitting the spa for the morning of your final day.

Go for lunch at Giada, celebrity chef Giada De Laurentiis's new restaurant, and share a variety of the drool-worthy antipasti. Leave room for dessert at Serendipity 3 (5) at Caesars Palace and split a decadent frozen hot chocolate. For your final stop, visit The Linq's promenade and take a ride on the High Roller (2). At 550 feet, it's the tallest observation wheel in the world and boasts spectacular views of the city you're about to bid farewell to.

INGREDIENTS

SERVES 8 TO 10

Coffee Cake

- ½ cup unsalted butter, softened
- ¾ cup granulated sugar
- 2 eggs
- ½ cup sour cream
- 1 tsp almond extract
- 1½ cups all-purpose flour
- 1 tsp baking powder
- ½ tsp salt
- 4 cups fresh peach slices

Streusel Topping

- 1 tbsp cold unsalted butter
- 2 tbsp all-purpose flour
- ¼ cup sliced almonds
- 2 tbsp demerara sugar
- 1 tsp cinnamon

DIRECTIONS

Preheat the oven to 350°F. Using a stand mixer fitted with the paddle attachment, cream together the butter and sugar on medium-high speed until light and fluffy. With the mixer still running, add in the eggs, one at a time, followed by the sour cream and almond extract.

Meanwhile, in a medium bowl, sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Reduce the mixer to low speed and add the dry ingredients to the wet in three additions, scraping down the sides of the bowl after each addition.

Butter and flour a 9" round deep-dish pie pan. Pour half of the batter evenly into the pie pan and layer 2 cups of the peach slices ovetop. Repeat with the remaining batter and peach slices.

To make the streusel topping, in a small bowl, work together the butter and the flour with your fingers until a coarse meal forms. Stir in the almonds, sugar and cinnamon. Sprinkle on top of the peach slices.

Bake until a toothpick inserted in the centre of the buckle comes out clean, 50 to 60 minutes. Allow to cool slightly and serve warm with ice cream on the side.

Tara Ellis and Andrew Bell lived with the cramped and outdated kitchen in their semi-detached Victorian in Toronto for 12 years before deciding it was time to make some changes. Not only was the space aesthetically unpleasant, but it was also a pain in their backs – literally. “The existing countertop was installed below standard height. I’m six feet tall, and my husband is about as tall,” says Tara. Since a few other rooms in the house weren’t terribly livable either, they called on designer Philippe Beauparlant to oversee a massive renovation. “As for the kitchen,” says Tara, “we wanted a better layout with lots of storage, and I’ve always loved a banquette.”

The planning process “One of the challenges I noticed right away,” says Philippe, “was the kitchen’s poor connection to the backyard.” Specifically, the back door in the adjacent mud room opened onto a tall outdoor staircase. His solution was to move the inside stairs that led down to the basement to the back of the house, incorporating a lower landing area that’s level with the yard. This clever approach allowed for floor-to-ceiling storage on the landing. And with the back wall now completely clad in glass, natural light floods the kitchen.

The design decisions While the couple loves a modern industrial feel, they also wanted to preserve the home’s character. That’s why Philippe chose a clean cabinet door profile and installed crown moulding that matches an existing one in the house. He also played up the heritage aspect by picking a traditional grey-green shade for the cabinetry. A splash of colour comes from mustard yellow pendant lights and tomato red handles on the Wolf range, which Tara tied together with two stools her mother calls “mustard and ketchup.”

The result “Everyone gravitates to the kitchen now because it’s so bright and airy in the day and cozy at night,” says Tara.

BLACK BEAUTY

The allure of a classic is that it remains true to its roots, but that doesn't mean it can't get a fashion-forward update every now and then. In decorating circles, that means that although, say, a dramatic black and white room will never go out of style, you can always give it a fresh facelift to highlight the newest looks. Case in point is this sleek monochromatic kitchen. While it features timeless elements like contemporary white cabinetry and open shelving, it also incorporates a slew of the latest trends. Inspired to inject a little iconic black and white into your space? We searched out the key pieces you need to be on trend and in style – and stay that way for years to come.

TREND #1 SUBTLE DETAILS

When it comes to show-stopping kitchens, it's all about the details. From thoughtfully designed cross-hatch etching on the handles to enhance grip, to subtle pops of colour, the look of the redesigned KitchenAid appliances is understated yet elegant and sophisticated. These premium details provide creative home chefs with a high-performance and fashion-forward kitchen space.

DISHWASHER WITH CLEAN WATER WASH, $2,099, KitchenAid, kitchenaid.ca.

STO KITCHEN FAUCET in Matte Black, $547, Moen, moen.ca.

TREND #2 MATTE FINISHES

Slick and shiny has given way to a more subtle, lustrous look that works well in a monochromatic or neutral-toned kitchen, lending it added depth and dimension. Plus, it's a trend that can accommodate a variety of budgets – you can find it in anything from a stand mixer or faucet to an investment piece like a range-hood or refrigerator.

ARTISAN® SERIES 5-QUART STAND MIXER, in Imperial Black, $549, KitchenAid, kitchenaid.ca.

WALL-MOUNT VENT 600 CFM, 30", $1,799, KitchenAid, kitchenaid.ca.

5-DOOR REFRIGERATOR WITH ICE/WATER DISPENSER, 36", $4,899, KitchenAid, kitchenaid.ca.

TREND #3 BLACK STAINLESS APPLIANCES

Black is definitely back, and KitchenAid is leading the charge with its redesigned major appliance collection that includes a sophisticated new black stainless suite featuring everything from a 5-door refrigerator to a selection of dishwashers, wall ovens and hoods. The standout black stainless steel by KitchenAid is an entirely new fingerprint-resistant finish. An industry first, it's satiny, smooth and powerful – perfect for a kitchen that makes a fearless statement.

TREND #4 NEUTRAL PALETTE

The key to highlighting the drama of this graphic look is to stay within a classic colour scheme that doesn't detract from the details. By painting walls and choosing cabinetry in neutral shades, you can change up the trends with ease.

TREND #5 TRIBAL ACCENTS

Black and white can often come off as cold, but by including handmade items like a dhurrie rug, hammam towel or woven basket, you'll add a dose of texture that will provide much-needed warmth to the space.

BLACK & BEIGE WAVE BASKET, $145, Far & Wide Collective, farandwidecollective.ca.

LIFESTYLE ARCHITECT

"It isn't just about pretty rooms anymore," says designer Windsor Smith in her new book, Windsor Smith Homefront. "It's important to look beyond shimmery surfaces, gorgeous fabrics and expensive furnishings, and think about the overall appeal of your home and what you want the quality of your life to be." That's why Windsor calls herself a "lifestyle architect." She helps people find livable luxury in houses that cater to their lifestyles; she designs spaces that are meant to be used and encourage togetherness. That's probably why she's among the most sought-after designers today, with celebrity clients like Gwyneth Paltrow; product lines with beloved companies like Kravet, Arteriors and Boyd Lighting; and smaller design programs that give those with tight(er) budgets access to her inimitable style. Her rooms are lovely, layered, elegant and inviting, much like Windsor herself. It's easy to see why she's so admired.

EXPECT THE UNEXPECTED

You'd be surprised to learn that, until recently, Windsor had a Ping-Pong table smack dab in the middle of her living room. "Both my sons are competitive tennis players," she explains. "And living rooms are those lost spaces that are expensive to decorate but rarely get used." So she made the most of hers and had it painted black, popped a bright blue Ping-Pong table in its centre and placed white linen sofas around the perimeter. "The kids loved it – their friendships were formed there," she says. She's since taken back the space and transformed it into a late-night sitting room with dark walls, white sofas and an art display (shown on the previous page). "It's the room where everybody goes to relax at the end of a dinner party," she says. "It's dark and dreamy."

GILDED GALLERY

A PEEK AT A GALLERY WALL FROM ONE OF WINDSOR'S PROJECTS.

"My style in two words?
Eclectic aristocracy."

WINDSOR'S GOLDEN RULES FOR CREATING A GALLERY WALL

1) START A COLLECTION. Gather frames and artwork over time so when you're ready to create your gallery wall, it's just a matter of marrying the items you've amassed. "Collect, collect, collect, and then lay everything out, move it all around and edit it until you get to the perfect configuration," says Windsor, who suggests starting with empty frames and adding the artwork after.

2) HAVE A RULE OF THUMB. You can have frames in different sizes, says Windsor, but they should always be hung the same distance apart. "Whether you choose 1¼" or 3¼" for your grid spacing, you have to be fairly rigid about the distance from one frame to the next," she says.

3) MAKE YOUR MARKS. After you have your layout, trace each frame onto a piece of paper, marking the location of the hooks. Use these mock frames to mark on the wall where each hook should go, and then start hanging.

4) ENJOY IT. Pour a glass of wine, put on some music (Windsor would probably play opera by Alessandro Safina) and have fun!

ON INSPIRATION

"Pinterest is absolutely addictive, but I also love to visit my local design district or even root out smaller storefronts for in-person inspiration," says Windsor, who lives in the Los Angeles area. "Sometimes, when I need to source a lot of pieces, I'll jump on a plane to San Francisco because I love its design centre. It's nice to get out of my element. Additionally, I attend great art exhibits and see old movies...I look for inspiration in everything."

Windsor Smith Homefront
by Meredith Strang (Rizzoli
New York, $50)

"I don't have a certain aesthetic, a mark that I keep trying to hit – I'm not trying to stick the same landing. I'm always attempting a different cartwheel."

THE GATSBY EFFECT

It's remarkable to see how inspiration manifests itself in Windsor's designs. "I watched The Great Gatsby on a plane coming back from New York, and I kept stopping the film to take photos with my cellphone – it must have driven the person sitting next to me crazy," says Windsor. "In Daisy's opening scene, she has her hand draped over the back of a sofa and there's sheer white drapery flowing in the background, filling the room. I was finishing a house in Los Angeles at the time, and the movie inspired the drapery – I ended up using these gorgeous gauzy sheers."

STAR STYLE

Gwyneth Paltrow and Windsor Smith became fast friends when the actress bought a show-house decorated by the designer. "I fell in love with Windsor Smith before I ever laid eyes on her...it was a house that did it," Gwyneth writes in the foreword of Windsor's book. The two have stayed super close ever since, and Gwyneth still looks to the designer for decor advice, most recently on her games room update.

HALLMARKS OF HOME

Windsor makes an art of mixing old and new, personality and style. The highlights of any home are those cherished items, says Windsor. She works with clients to incorporate their existing favourites into a fresh design. "Pull forward the pieces that make you feel good," she says. "I get very uncomfortable in a space where everything is new. I just don't feel at ease." The Venetian silver lantern that hangs in the entryway of Windsor's home has enjoyed the same pride of place in each of the three houses she's lived in over the past 20 years. "A million people have tried to buy it from me but, as far as I'm concerned, it's like my wedding band – I'll never sell it," she says. "When my husband and I walk into the house, it's a nice reminder that we're home."

EASY STEPS TO CUSTOMIZING YOUR OWN IKEA DESK.

Step 1 Assemble the Alex desktop as per the manufacturer's instructions (you won't need the frame that's included). Set the desktop aside.

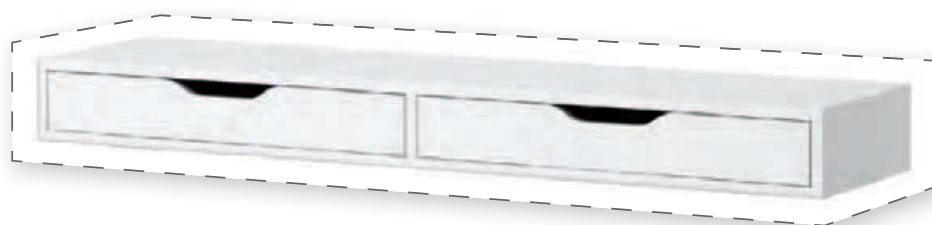

Step 2 To make the desk 30" high (the standard height), use a handsaw to cut off 3" from the bottom of each Hilver leg. Screw the legs into the pre-drilled holes of the Linnmon tabletop.

Step 3 Apply a latex-based adhesive to the top of the Linnmon tabletop and carefully set the Alex desktop on top, ensuring it's centred. Clamp the surfaces together while the adhesive dries overnight.

Small cabinets are less visually distracting and are ideal for concealing basic everyday items.

The clean, modern island has a waterfall countertop in white quartz, with metal stools adding an industrial touch.

When Mary and Thomas Touhey traded city living for Vancouver Island oceanfront, they had the guidance of their designer daughter, Jessica Touhey. “The house was a time capsule from the 1980s,” says Jessica. But its location and contemporary architecture sold them, and Jessica spearheaded the inevitable renovation. Here, she tells us how she made it all happen.

What were the main challenges with the original kitchen?

The kitchen was small, severely outdated and completely enclosed. We took out as many walls as possible to create an open-concept kitchen and dining and living space with views that could be enjoyed from anywhere.

What was your overall vision for the space? We wanted a modern look with a focus on West Coast materials so the kitchen would blend into the natural surroundings.

Where did you save and where did you splurge? The porcelain tile backsplash looks like marble but costs a fraction of the price of a stone slab. We also found interesting lighting from a local supplier that was reasonably priced. One splurge was the waterfall countertops, which basically doubled our material costs but were so worth it for the overall look.

What’s the one investment piece you couldn’t do without?

We invested in a pair of under-counter fridge drawers, rather than a full-sized model, in the main kitchen to maintain uninterrupted views of the outdoors. We then placed a large fridge and freezer in a pantry area just outside the kitchen.

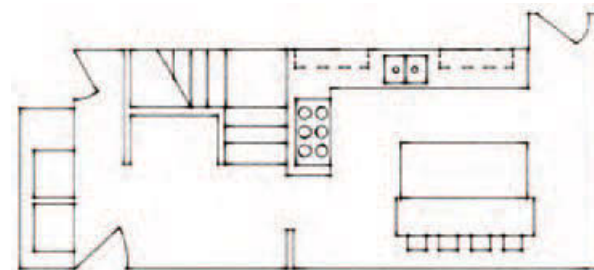

Explain the design decisions behind the island.

To provide tons of space for eating and prep, we went with a substantial-sized island. We broke up the large expanse of white quartz with a fir accent strip, which delineates the two areas and adds warmth and interest.

BELOW A pantry area at the back of the kitchen houses a hot beverage station, a juicer and plenty of storage for the busy family of four. A small sink eliminates trips to and from the main kitchen.

THE FLOOR PLAN

450 SQ. FT.

“We called it the Frankenstein House,” says designer Lisa Canning about the original state of this Toronto home. “There were several types of flooring used just on the main floor, and the layout was a mess.” Busy entrepreneurs Donna Bishop and Stephen Keith brought Lisa in to make the space work hard and look good. Here, the designer explains how the project came together.

What were the main challenges with the original kitchen? The owners love to entertain, but their long, narrow house had a choppy layout, which didn’t lend itself well to that. We removed every wall and post we could to completely open up the main floor. We saved space by eliminating the dining table and installing a large island with stools instead.

What type of kitchen did you want to create? The goal was to build a warm and inviting kitchen with a hint of rusticity. This family is very eco-conscious, so that was also a consideration that drove a lot of the design decisions.

Where did you save and where did you splurge? We invested in custom cabinetry to ensure we used every available inch of space, and all the handmade barnboard accents were also pricey due to the skilled labour involved. Using inexpensive subway tile for the backsplash saved costs, but it’s a classic choice that works well with the look regardless.

What’s the one investment piece you couldn’t do without? The powerful six-burner gas cooktop was really important for Donna to have. The home is such a hub for friends and family, so the function of the range was a big factor. We also made it a focal point in the island.

Explain the design decisions behind the wooden accents. We wanted to inject warmth into the new kitchen, so we used wood wherever possible without making it look too country. The walnut-veneered open shelving along the top of the upper cabinets gives the kitchen a more relaxed, restaurant-like quality.

Faced with space constraints and a tricky layout, Style at Home research editor Mary Levitski outsources the design of her home office to two highly qualified colleagues.

THE CHALLENGE

I wanted to carve out a dedicated office space in my tiny one-bedroom Toronto condo. The den was the obvious spot, but it lacked size and privacy. Save for two slim partition walls, the eight-by-eight-foot nook had no separation from the open-concept kitchen and living area.

THE TASK FORCE

I delegated the job of creating a his-and-hers work zone – which is at once isolated and integrated – to two of my fellow Style at Home staffers.

Delineate a work zone in a multi-functional open-concept living space by using a bold wallcovering.

Handed a blank canvas of builder-basic white walls and wood-look vinyl flooring, Style at Home design editor Stacy Begg and associate design editor Morgan Lindsay had their work cut out for them. “Priority one? Visually separate the den from the rest of the condo,” says Stacy. “It needed an accent wall.” After much searching, the duo found the right fit in a bold blueprint-esque wallpaper that even my picky husband, Greg Davidovitch (the construction manager at Penguin Basements), couldn’t turn down. They further delineated the room with a large rug and a custom L-shaped desk that optically extends the line of one of the partitions.

Having crafted a box to think within, Stacy and Morgan tackled their second deliverable:

The space needed to work double duty as a storage area, particularly for overflow from the adjacent cramped kitchen. Using prefab cabinetry, they erected a huge storage unit along the back wall. Two-thirds of it acts as a pantry, while the rest is dedicated to keeping work necessities handy and organized.

To temper the busy wallpaper and dark walnut desk, Stacy says, they chose a crisp paper white for the storage unit. Ditto most of the other elements, including the chair, filing cabinet and pendant light. Even the subway token artwork is framed and matted in the hue.

The bottom line? Calling in the pros has earned me a chic, orderly office that I want to spend time in (which is a good thing, I think).

HIDDEN AGENDA

Concealed within the streamlined white storage unit behind the desk are office essentials, such as a wireless printer, various file sorters and a dictionary – an editor's best friend.

Make work a little more inviting with thoughtful touches like greenery.

FINE PRINT

If ever a man and a wallcovering were meant to be, it would be my construction manager husband and this graphic blueprint-look wall-paper. It's all the more arresting paired with the black walnut desktop's distinct grain.

SLABS OF CARRARA MARBLE COVER MANY OF THE KITCHEN'S SURFACES AND ADD SUBTLE INTEREST TO THE ALL-WHITE SPACE.

Has the dog tracked in dirt? Is that sand on the floor? Are those wet bathing suits on the sofas? Such questions are not welcome in this casually elegant 6,000-square-foot eight-bedroom cottage on Lake Simcoe in Barrie, Ont. “I love beautiful sofas and luxurious marble, but I don’t care if red wine or strawberry stains eventually end up on the surfaces,” says one of the owners of this four-season lakefront retreat, which she frequents with her husband, their four children and Havanese dog to escape the hustle and bustle of city life.

To complement the classic cedar-shingled cottage, the couple envisioned a contemporary Cape Cod look and turned to designer Tara Fingold to execute it. To begin, Tara created a refined seaside-inspired envelope, selecting an off-white wall paint, pale-toned hardwood floors and sophisticated finishes, such as Carrara marble for the kitchen. STRETCH OUT SUMMER FUN

Long, hot days are made for playing, partying and getting messy. Organizing plans and cleaning up after everyone is enough to give you the summertime blues. One easy solution? Depend on a stretchy, durable paper towel for summer living hacks and as-you-go cleaning.

Wrap warm bottled or canned drinks with a wet sheet of Viva paper towel to quickly cool them in the freezer.

Dear Viva Brand,

Summer can be totally fun – and totally messy. From weekend brunches to ice cream afternoons to BBQ nights, we've had a blast and made a lot of messes along the way. You helped us own this summer, Viva! Your stretch and durability were the perfect tag team for all our summer messes. We even used you in a pinch to help out with cooking and entertaining. Who knew we'd learn so many great tricks this summer?

A+ job!

Sandra

Summer fun-seeker

◀ THE GRILLING IS EASY

Summer means barbecues—and baked-on gunk. To get it gone, we soaked the grates in warm water, then scrubbed them with a sheet of Viva paper towel. It's strong when wet, so it's the only tool we needed to make our barbecue shine again.

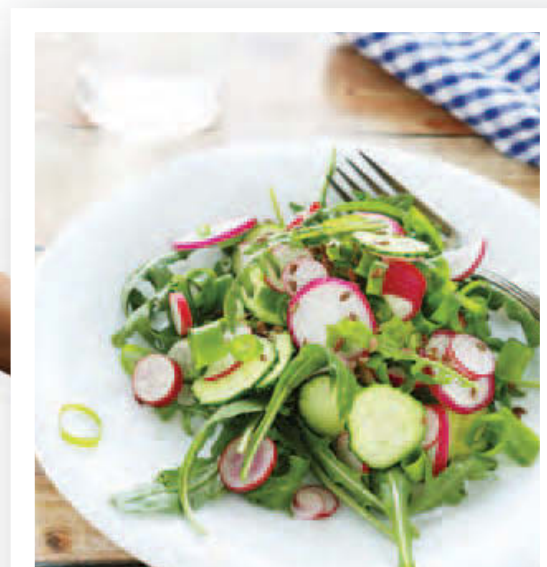

BERRY SIMPLE ▶

U-pick raspberries are our favourite, but they need a wash. Instead of hunting for a colander, we rinse the berries on a taut sheet of Viva paper towel under the tap. Viva® Vantage® V-Flex Weave technology means it's three times more durable when wet versus the leading towel!*

SALAD DAYS ▼

No salad spinner? Wash and tear greens, bundle them in a few sheets of Viva towels, then swing them around to remove excess water. Viva towels are so stretchy, they won't break, and you'll have perfectly dry salads.

easygoing textures in shades of white, grey and blue, which recall sandy beaches, sun-bleached driftwood and cloudy skies. The serene scheme is consistent from room to room, imbuing the entire cottage with a feeling of cohesiveness. “As soon as you walk into the home, it feels unified, airy and friendly,” says Tara.

But the real star of the show is the cottage’s natural surroundings – snippets of lake, sky and trees framed by large windows and glass doors. “Keeping the sightlines to the outdoors as unobstructed as possible was key,” says Tara. To that end, design choices complement – rather than compete with – the view, so the couple can experience the relaxing qualities of the outdoors even when they’re cuddled up on the cozy chenille sofas with their kids and dog. It’s everything the homeowners could want in a cottage that’s as lovely and livable as it is utterly gorgeous.

ABOVE The drapes and dining chair backs feature graphic patterns in coordinating colours, which quietly animate the dining room. The lantern-style pendant light doesn’t detract from the view of Lake Simcoe through the glass doors.

the scrupulous transformation of this fresh and inviting Montreal house has garnered a bit of celebrity status, at least among family and friends. “Every time someone comes over, the very first thing they ask is, ‘Okay, what’s new? What’s been added?’” says Sarah, who shares the home with her husband, Hugo, and their two children, Henri-Louis, 11, and Léo-Paul, 6. “We have a following!”

It all started six years ago, when the couple purchased this 3,000-square-foot Arts-and-Crafts-style house in the family-oriented Cartierville neighbourhood of Montreal. They knew they would renovate at some point, but unexpected grade and foundation problems that caused leakage in the basement took them by surprise. “The whole basement had to be redone,” says Sarah. “That wasn’t part of the original plan.”

Once they dealt with the structural issues both indoors and out, the fun part began about two years ago, when the couple enlisted designer Jean Stéphane Beauchamp to help with the decor. Sarah had spotted Jean Stéphane’s charming Victorian triplex in a 2008 issue of Canadian Home & Country (previously a sister magazine of Style at Home) and was struck by his eclectic style and penchant for mixing patterns.

While working on the interior, which Sarah dubbed “the Kingdom of Stucco,” Jean Stéphane needed to address its unfocused aesthetic. “It was pulling you in every direction,” he says. “For example, there were large brick arches, tricoloured slate floors and almost Spanish Colonial wrought-iron handrails. In one room there was a traditional coffered ceiling and in another there were rustic wood beams. The house had a bit of everything – but it had really interesting bones.”

Creating a cohesive, uniform look meant updating some architectural features (they painted an exposed brick wall in the living room and stripped or painted the dark wood elements); replacing others (the

The extension at the side of the house doubled the size of the kitchen, allowing for a brighter, more functional space. Jean Stéphane wanted the island to look like a piece of furniture, so he raised it off the floor by incorporating simple legs. busy, cold slate floors were supplanted with a stunning oak herringbone design); injecting a neutral palette of greys and creams with touches of black; and incorporating Jean Stéphane's sophisticated, comfortable style, which was also practical for a family of four. Says the designer: "Sarah once said to me, 'I want something that looks fresh and fabulous if we have a party, but where I'm not scared if the kids run around.' And I think we definitely achieved that."

With the smaller projects turning out so well, Sarah and Hugo were ready to embark on a more substantial renovation with Jean Stéphane: tackling the kitchen addition. The extension (which also included a mud room in the basement and a single-car garage) allowed them to double the size of their dark, cramped kitchen and create a bright, family-friendly space. The homeowners and designer worked closely together on the plans and had a vision of something highly functional that suited the look of the rest of the house.

Recess-panelled cabinetry, quartzite countertops and streamlined pulls offer a classic vibe, while the square ceramic-tiled backsplash with grey grout lends a French bistro flair. The hammered-metal pendant lights anchor the space. "Because there are so many beautiful things to look at in the kitchen, I thought we needed a focal point," says Jean Stéphane, "and that we should do it over the island."

With the kitchen overhaul complete (it took almost a year from the planning stage), you'd think Hugo and Sarah would be ready to take a much-needed breather; however, they recently added a wine cellar in the basement. So what can fans look forward to from this reno-happy couple? "We eventually want to tackle the upstairs," says Sarah.

The light, white and airy dining room, which leads to the backyard, is a favourite space in this house – especially come summer. To maximize brightness, homeowner Maude Arsenault had the parquet floors and bead-board walls painted white.

THE MOST EFFECTIVE GALLERIES DRAW YOU IN AND MAKE YOU feel welcome and inspired, as their artwork guides you from room to room, piquing your interest at each glance. Though this impeccably appointed house is not a gallery, it was decorated with the expert eye of a fashion photographer and online gallery owner, and its effect is the same: It beckons you to explore each corner and ask about every piece.

"I've always felt that my home is more about showcasing art than it is about design," says Maude Arsenault, who lives in this approximately 3,000-square-foot Victorian in Montreal's Outremont neighbourhood with her film director husband, Eric Tessier, and their three children.

Not surprisingly, every single wall is white (what gallery's walls aren't?). Warm and cool shades, high-gloss and eggshell finishes and wall treatments ranging from beadboard in the dining room to brick in the living room ensure the effect isn't too sterile. Meanwhile, strong doses of black and grey – the entryway stair runner, living room drapery and dining room table and pendant light, to name a few – punctuate the rooms and ground their airy brightness. This simple palette provides the perfect backdrop for what really brings the space to life: the artwork. The collection is consistent throughout the whole house—it's all compelling photography, mostly contemporary, some portraits, in muted colours and with personal meaning for Maude, whether they're her own works or great finds.

One of her most beloved pieces enjoys pride of place in the well-used dining room. The star of the stark white and black space is a close-up of a young girl staring straight into the camera. "The piece is from a series on kids watching TV," says Maude. "A lot of people ask if it's of my daughter, but I've had it for as long as I've had kids, so it's almost part of the family."

And that's the key to buying art, says Maude. "Don't buy something simply because it's a good value or the next cool artist. Trust your instincts and invest in something you really love—you'll have to live with it for a long time." Use your home as a blank canvas for displaying art that reflects you and your personality—that's the secret to successful design à la Maude.

STYLING CHRISTINE HANLON

It's all about family, friends and indoor-outdoor living at Marina and Blake Farrow's residence near Collingwood, Ont.

Sometimes it takes a faraway place to remind us of what matters close to home. That was the case for custom-home builder Blake Farrow of Blake Farrow Project Management and his wife, Marina, a designer who co-owns design studio and retail store Farrow Arcaro Design. “Three years ago we took our kids, Kyle, Jake and Olivia [now 21, 19 and 12 respectively], on a beach vacation,” says Blake. “We spent every day outside, swimming, kiteboarding

The 10-foot-long dining table is on wheels, “so we can move it outside [through the glass bifold doors] for a dinner party or push it aside for one of our huge get-togethers,” says Marina.

and hanging out together.” Not wanting the idyllic family time to end with the vacation, the couple decided to rejig their real estate. “We lived in Collingwood [Ont.], where our businesses are located, but our trip reminded us that the long-term plan was to have some land where we could connect as a family,” he says. “As soon as we got home, Marina called our real estate agent and said, ‘Find us a place in the country.’” It was serendipitous, as a listing for a 1970s two-storey house on three and a half acres popped up while they were on the phone. “We put in an offer that moment,” says Marina. “The house is a mile from town but feels like a world away.”

It was also a world away from move-in ready, with a cracked foundation, rotted roof and wildly overgrown lot, but the couple was already envisioning a space that would reflect their lifestyle. “We like things simple, not over the top,” says Marina. “We wouldn’t be comfortable in a home where things have to be kept perfect.” Given their professions, they were able to parlay those laid-back preferences into bricks and mortar – or in this case, barnboard. “I immediately imagined a barn,” says Blake. “Its clean shape lends itself to casual living.”

Ease for university students Kyle and Jake to come home and visit also dictated Blake’s ingenious plan: Gut and rebuild the original 1,300-square-foot structure as a modern barn with three bedrooms, a bathroom and a large living area for their sons and link it with a hallway to a new house for themselves and Olivia. “This set-up is perfect for the guys,” says Blake. “They have their own space where they can hang with their buddies. When they’re back at school, we close it off to save energy.”

Blake, Marina and Olivia lived in the “boys’ barn” during the six months it took to build the 3,000-square-foot main barn, an energy-efficient two-bedroom house with an open-concept main level. It features radiant-heat polished concrete floors (low maintenance and perfect for the family’s Bernese mountain dogs, Heidi and Rosie) and a show-stopping 26-foot-long wall of glass bifold doors that merge the dining area with the outdoor deck. Decor wise, the couple’s no-fuss approach is conveyed with crisp white walls, uncovered windows and furniture fitted with wheels for impromptu placement inside and out – a big thing, given how much time they spend outside. “It’s like a mini resort here,” says Blake. “We have a pool, trails to explore, frogs to catch – we even added a zip line. Our house is a cool space where we celebrate family and friends.” And where far-away vacations now seem superfluous.

OPPOSITE, TOP “I love to create new looks for our bed with colour and texture,” says Marina. Her affinity for both is reinforced by the bench covered with an antique Turkish rug.

ON BEETS

Delicious and nutritious both raw and cooked, this double-duty must-have veggie has become a favourite harvest-time habit.

Dark Chocolate

DARK CHOCOLATE BEET BROWNIES

PREP & COOK TIME 1 HOUR | MAKES 16 SQUARES

- 6 tbsp unsalted butter, melted, plus more for preparing the pan
- ½ cup all-purpose flour
- ½ tsp cinnamon
- ¾ cup golden brown sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1½ cups dark bittersweet chocolate chips, melted
- 1 tsp pure vanilla extract
- ⅔ cup peeled and finely grated raw red beets (about 2 medium)

Preheat the oven to 350°F. Butter an 8" square baking pan and line the bottom with parchment paper.

Stir together the flour and cinnamon in a small bowl and set aside. Using an electric mixer, beat the melted butter with the brown sugar in a large bowl. Add the eggs, one at a time, beating constantly; add the chocolate chips and vanilla extract and beat just until blended. Add the flour and cinnamon mixture and beat until the batter is smooth and glossy, about 1 minute. Add the beets and stir through until the mixture is thoroughly blended.

Spread the batter evenly into the prepared pan. Bake on the middle rack of the oven until a knife inserted in the centre of the pan comes out clean, about 30 minutes. Cool completely before turning out the brownies and cutting them into squares to serve.

CRISPY BEET CHIPS

PREP & COOK TIME 45 MINUTES | SERVES 4

- 4 large beets
- 4 cups peanut oil
- Sea salt to taste

Peel the beets and slice into very thin rounds on a mandoline (the thinner the slices, the crispier the chips).

Heat the peanut oil to 365°F in a large heavy-bottomed pot. Carefully drop in one-quarter of the sliced beets, stirring gently. Let cook until tender-crisp, about 5 to 6 minutes; remove with a slotted spoon and drain on a baking sheet lined with paper towels. The chips will crisp as they cool. Repeat with the remaining beet slices. Season with salt and serve immediately.

GOLDEN BEET PASTA WITH GOAT CHEESE & PINE NUTS

PREP & COOK TIME 30 MINUTES | SERVES 4

- 1 lb short pasta, such as casarecce
- 4 golden beets, roasted
- 1 tbsp unsalted butter
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 tsp crushed red pepper flakes
- 1 tsp lemon zest
- 1 handful beet greens, sliced into ribbons
- 4 oz soft goat cheese, crumbled
- ¼ cup toasted pine nuts

Cook the pasta in a large pot of boiling salted water according to the package directions.

Meanwhile, peel the roasted beets and cut them into bite-sized wedges. Heat the butter in a medium skillet over medium heat. Add the garlic and crushed red pepper flakes and sauté gently until fragrant, about 2 to 3 minutes. Add the beets and lemon zest and heat gently to warm through.

Drain the pasta and return to the pot. Stir in the beets, greens, cheese and pine nuts. Serve immediately.

GOLDEN BEET PASTA With Goat Cheese & Pine Nuts

ROASTED BEETS With Orange Gremolata

ROASTED BEETS WITH ORANGE GREMOLATA

PREP & COOK TIME 1½ HOURS | SERVES 4

- 1 lb medium-sized beets (about 5), washed and trimmed
- 1 tbsp extra-virgin olive oil, plus more for garnish
- 2 tbsp finely chopped fresh parsley
- 2 tbsp finely chopped fresh mint
- 1 tbsp finely grated orange zest
- ¼ tsp minced garlic

Preheat the oven to 350°F. Toss the beets in the olive oil, season with salt and pepper to taste and individually wrap each beet in a square of aluminum foil. Place the beets directly on the oven rack and roast until tender when pierced with a knife, about 1 hour. Remove from the oven and let rest until cool enough to handle. Peel the beets and discard the skins. Cut each beet into ¼"-thick rounds.

Meanwhile, to make the gremolata, combine the parsley, mint, orange zest and garlic in a bowl and stir until well blended.

To serve as a rustic side dish, place the peeled beets in a roasting pan, drizzle with olive oil and sprinkle with the gremolata. Serve warm or at room temperature.
